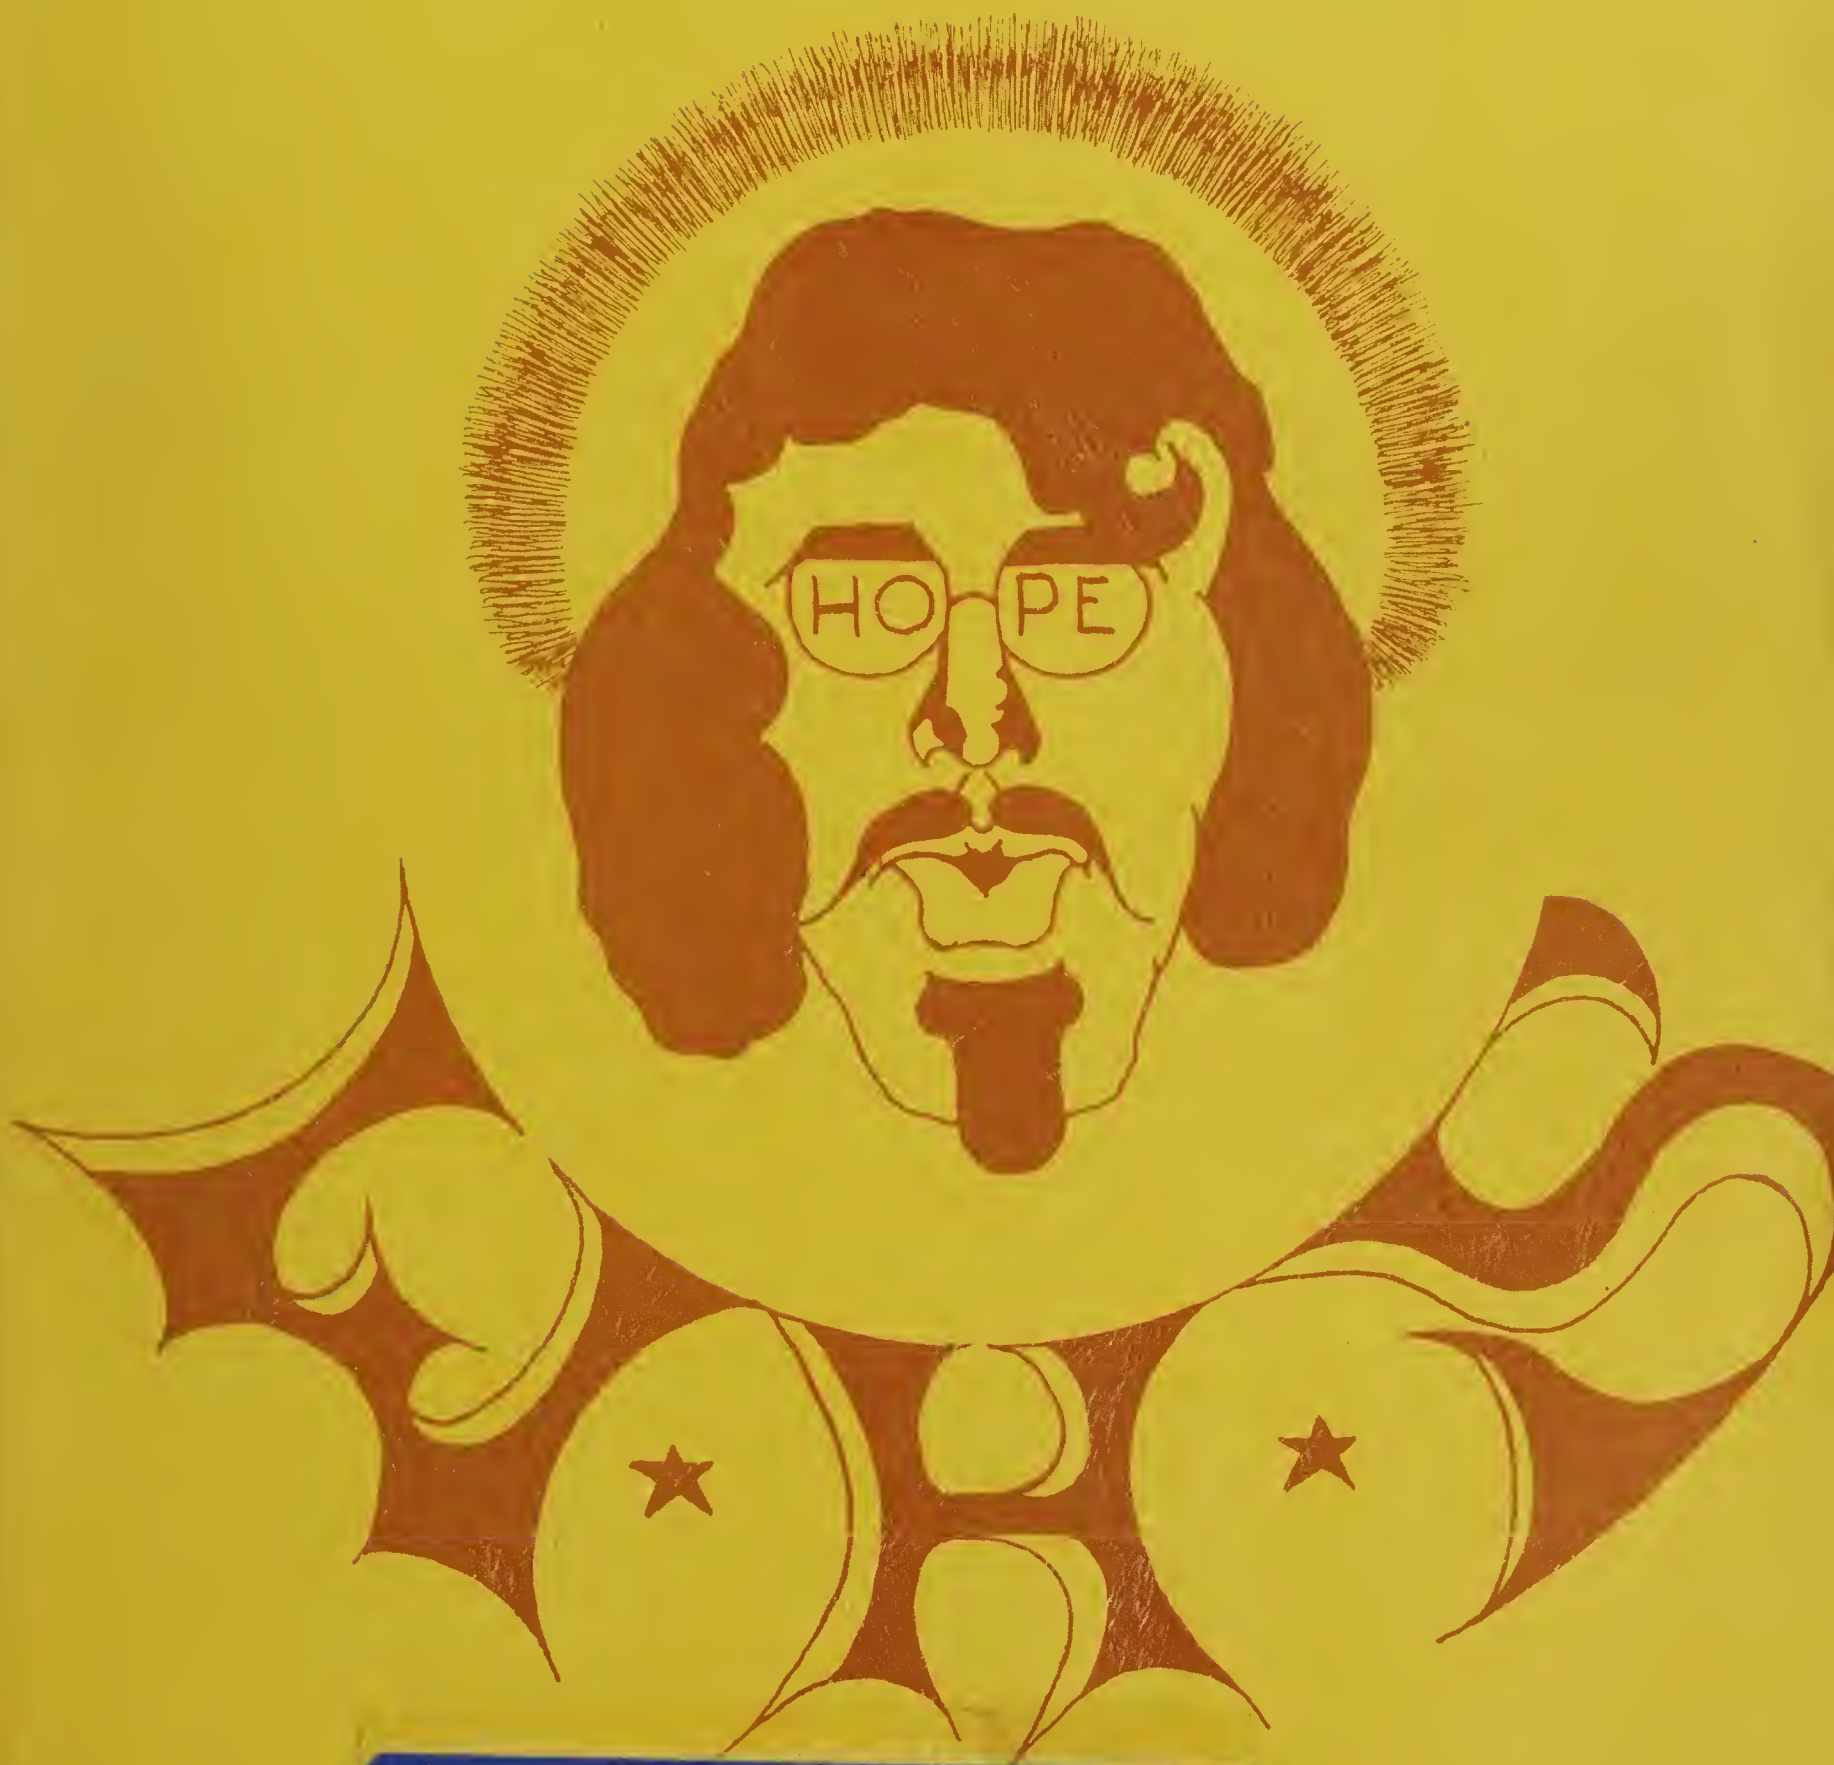
BOOK I



Waynesboro Public Library
Waynesboro, Virginia

This is Skyline 1973, Volume 19. It is a very different type of journal covering the events of the year at WHS. It is a summer book, encompassing all the aspects of school life from September to June.

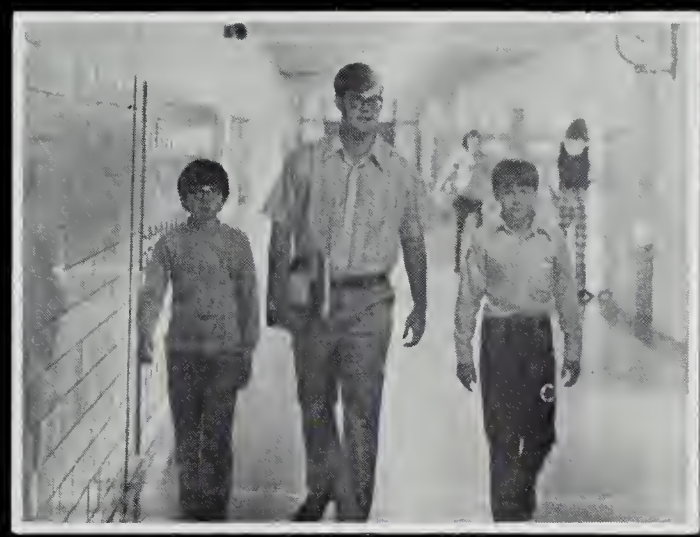
In this particular volume, Book I, the reader will find the following sections:

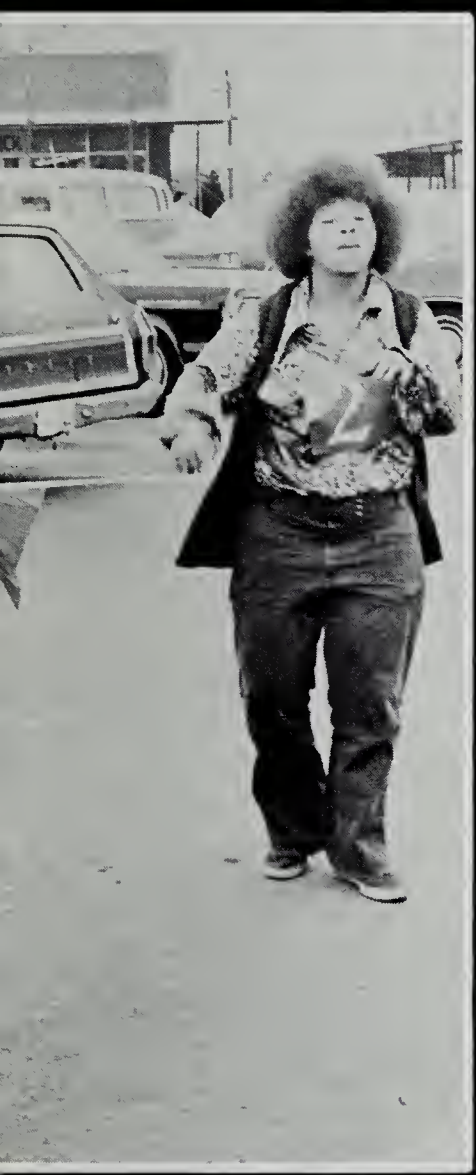
Clubs, pp. 8-47
Faculty, pp. 50-61
Classes, pp. 64-129

A two-volume book enclosed in a cardboard slipcover, this new type of publication entails even less cost than any of its predecessors, this being very fortunate for the sake of eradicating a $3800 debt incurred by an All-American Yearbook. A momentary solution to the dilemma . . .

WAYNESBORO CHRY

This is the year of the book of and for the students, not a select few; in short, a book for the students and not for the judges. Arguments pro-theme seem to melt in the face of such questions as, "Are you going to put in more stupid pictures of walls and signs?" The editor must confront the situation.





Clubs

Music promotes understanding

Combining harmonious melodies with occasional bursts of laughter, Concert Choir successfully charmed audiences in Roanoke, Charlottesville, Waynesboro, and Lexington, North Carolina. Under the punctilious direction of Roger Zimmerman, the choir also amused and entertained crowds at Christmas and spring concerts as well as at the unsurpassable "April Foolery" spectacular.

Music is happiness

Members of this chorus achieved great goals by surpassing choruses of previous years in membership and vocal strength. An excellent Christmas concert, an appearance at Kate Collins, and a crowning spring concert were to the credit of the chorus and director Edward Buhl. The naming of fifteen members to Concert Choir topped off a successful year for the chorus.

Practice makes perfect

With the combined talents of eighty musicians, the band captivated halftime audiences with precision formations and stimulating musical entertainment. The coordination of vast melodic tones of percussion, bass, and woodwinds induced spectacular concert performances.

The uproar created by more than one hundred industrious students, exasperated sighs as still one more car must be washed, laughter as a minister pronounces another Sadie Hawkins couple "man and wife", and the blaring music of an enterprising dance marathon assure any listener that the Beta Club is alive and growing. The thump of seventy-nine people coming on stage to be inducted guarantees the continuance of a never-ending stream of scholars.

Scholars enjoy honors

National Honor Society members led their class with academic excellence. Trips to other schools enabled them to make some worthwhile suggestions to the WHS faculty concerning improvement of the school and educational system. Members were also responsible for publishing Senior Wills and Senior Superlatives. The induction of a realm of new members at the awards assembly assures academic leadership for still another year.

Cold, bruises, strained muscles, anxieties over a difficult routine. All these contribute to the making of a hard-working, dedicated, smiling majorette. Whether twirling batons, flags, or fire, or swinging to the halftime melodies of the band, their perserverance enabled them to portray WHS spirit in Christmas parades and other performances.

Coca-Cola

Fellowship through service

During the year club members held high their aim of service to the school and community. Candy apple sales, a well organized faculty Christmas dinner, a beautifully designed Christmas float, an entertaining party for welfare children, and aid to an underprivileged family were some of the successfully completed projects. Attending the National Keyette Convention was the high point of the year for many Keyettes, bringing to a climax the busy year.

United to be of service

Aiding their sister organization, the Keyettes, in a Christmas party for welfare children Key club members were able to provide transportation along with a worthy and well disguised Santa Claus. They proved themselves to be energetic, creative, and service oriented with such activities as lining the field prior to all home football games, blocking off the basketball court during warm ups and maintaining its spotless condition, and collecting trash in an effort to combat pollution.

Students foster ideas

Laughter, ideas from a child's viewpoint, new friendships to be added to older ones, fun. These are the rewards of the students who devote their time and talent to working with elementary school children in the classroom. That is what SODA is all about — development of a rich understanding between young children and young people through sharing and caring.

Nonchalant action is downfall

Odd jobs day, a bottle drive, a ping pong tournament, and the renewal of the A.F.S. student exchange program were some of the worthwhile accomplishments of the SCA. Also, the school newspaper was initiated under the supervision of this club. Lack of interest among the majority of the members caused the club to be dissolved before the close of the school year.

Staff plods on

Pictures, rulers, scissors, negatives, a bright orange cropper, yellow envelopes stuffed with receipt books and money, big erasers, sharp pencils poised for action, figures bent over stacks of blue checkered paper — all are signs of the dedicated annual staff in action. Such tools and workers assure an interesting yearbook for '73.

Athletes enjoy fellowship

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes joined sports-minded young men in the common interest of Christian brotherhood. One of their most interesting projects was selling football handbooks in an effort to raise money for the activities of the club.

Skills prove useful

Industrial Cooperative Training is a program offering possible employment to those possessing and successfully putting to use various skills that would be imperative on the job. Classes and meetings that focus on skills in industry help sharpen these talents for future use.

They bring hope for the future

Some students intrigued with the possibilities in the teaching profession joined the local chapter of Future Teachers of America. Through this club insight was gained concerning the pleasures and less delightful aspects of such a career.

Happy is the homemaker

The delicious smell of cakes, sandwiches, and cookies floated through the air as tasty tidbits were created for hungry members of the faculty. At other meetings the pleasing aroma of hot pizza permeated the atmosphere. A Christmas bazaar presented these future homemakers with an opportunity to use all possible skills and creativity in order to dream up some of the wonderful objects offered for sale.

Under the capable leadership of president Linda Mitchell, the Spanish Club enjoyed a small taste of Spanish culture in the form of a Christmas party complete with a piñata and a tasting party offering tempting dishes of Spanish countries.

Knowledge sharpens talents

Poetry, prose, original oratory, extemporaneous speaking, and spelling are the means for effective and enlightening communications between individuals. Members of the forensic team displayed their poise and their obvious gifts for expressing ideas in order to win meets against Turner Ashby, Wilson Memorial, Riverheads, and Stuarts Draft. These skills eventually led several members of the team to place in the district-wide meet.

Latin is for scholars

Latin has been considered the language of scholars. Latin club members put life into the language by becoming familiar with ancient life styles. Several members of the club took part in various Latin competitions and upheld the traditions of placing well in these events. Delicious candy was sold to fund activities for the year.

Persuasion brings rewards

The pros and cons of any issue can be exciting when attacked by ardent debaters whose minds and words are geared for victory. Because of the youthfulness and inexperience of the debate team this season, few of these victories became realities. However, insight gained through a year of hard work will aid them in further endeavors.

Noise, dirt, and litter can be eliminated by concerned individuals. P.Y.E. has continued the fight for a pollution-free environment with numerous paper drives and glass drives. Members also helped to clean up Waynesboro during Beautification Week and encouraged students to ride a bike to school for Bike Day.

Scientists explore universe

Future scientists and those interested in careers pertaining to science and engineering banded together into a club initiated to promote worthwhile activities related to scientific business. A noteworthy project undertaken by the members was participation in the science fair.

Opportunities found in library

Members explored the opportunities for work in a library by aiding the school librarians with some of the more tedious duties of the job and helped collect money for the United Fund. The highlight of the year was a tour of a college library.

The show must go on

Talent, ingenuity, and group unity empowered the drama club to oversee and perform many theatrical masterpieces upon the time-worn stage. Techniques of the art, molded under the keen direction of sponsors Alice Flora and Duane Hahn, blossomed into excellent character portrayal in the award winning production of "While Shakespeare Slept". These same actors and actresses were responsible for charming play goers at the play festival and several among its membership helped captivate audiences during the two night stand of the senior play.

Little, big men

Friction within a large body of people was inevitable and the responsibility for its alleviation fell upon the administration. From the intricacies of scheduling to the finesse required to quell major social disturbances, the administration posessed many talents necessary to the smooth functioning of the school. Mr. Kiger's experience and Mr. Muncy's cool savvy as a newcomer undergoing his trial by fire contributed greatly to the success of the year.

A secretary for all seasons

The versatile WHS secretaries performed many duties essential to the efficient operation of the school. Directing the day to day flow of clerical details, the duties of the four ran the gamut from recording attendance to ticket sales. Their friendly attitudes enabled students to feel relaxed while dealing with the administration.

Right: Above: Oblivious to the constant chatter of the secretaries, Nancy Telep is lulled to sleep by the steady ticking of the office clock.

With a little help

From the vast potpourri of subjects available at WHS the guidance department helped each student choose subjects which were necessary, beneficial, and interesting. Puzzled seniors were guided through the intricate preparations for attending college while others were steered into courses which helped them to obtain jobs after graduation. The students soon learned that, in the guidance department, all doors are open.

Everything's alright

Hard pressed to provide nourishing lunchs while satisfying the students' finicky appetites, the cafeteria staff competently turned out approximately 74,000 lunches during the year. While the cafeteria workers were turning out food at an amazing rate of speed for famished students, the maintenance staff had an even more strenuous job task — to maintain the campus of WHS after the thundering herds of grubby students had departed for home.

Cars N'Stars

Leading rigorous physical education classes, Mr. Lotts and Mr. Novak kept the WHS "no-loads" in good shape. Meanwhile the drivers' education teachers gave students essential information in the classroom and followed it up with actual driving experience. Along with these various duties, the members of the physical education and drivers' education staff were intimately involved in coaching the many WHS athletic teams.

Easy writers

Fusing together the fine elements of literature and the exacting points of grammar, the English department struggled to prepare students for the upcoming years in college or high school. Many college-bound students studied grammar conscientiously to avoid the misfortune of having to endure "dumbell" English courses in college. Capable teachers helped students toward a productive adult life by concentrating on the development of skills in reading, writing, speaking, and listening.

Like the meshing threads of fine, woven cloth, science and math intertwine at many points. These technical subjects form the basis for the knowledge of many aspects of our life. Without this basis higher learning becomes impossible. Around the world in 180 days

By highlighting past history and discussing current events, the Social Studies department did its best to help students understand the world's rapidly changing society and the events of yesteryear. To prepare students to participate as responsible adults in our democratic political system, special emphasis was placed on the 1972 Presidential Election.

Strenghtening ties with other countries, the skilled foreign language department strove to immerse language students in an even blend of speaking, translating, learning grammar, and understanding the spoken language. Extracurricular activities concerning the various countries also enhanced the students' knowledge of the different lands.

Make me smile

Combining the written word with the read, the Library Staff and the Reading Department worked hand in hand to produce a more knowledgeable student body. In the Library, Mrs. Foster and Miss Shackelford, the latter a winsome newcomer, made an effort to be of assistance in audio-visual, referential, historical, accurate ways. Witness to another immigrant, the Reading classes welcomed Mrs. Novak into the post of molding masters of rapid comprehension.

Perpetuating the musical pride of WHS, the three members of the Music Department successfully molded tonal talent into appreciable performances for both the school and the community. The band, under the direction of Mr. Phillips, produced football halftime passion plays and stage band specials while the Concert Choir, under Mr. Zimmerman, demonstrated vocal mastery while dabbling in such affairs as "April Foolery." The Mixed Chorus threw in its contribution as Mr. Buhl led it thru exacting concerts and even a performance for our young counterparts at Kate Collins.

Left: As Mr. Buhl, mixed chorus director, tries his hand at the piano, Mr. Zimmerman, director of concert choir, indulges in a hearty chuckle, while Mr. Philips. band director, displays a comment of "Not bad!".

Above Top: Although Mrs. Novak taught reading classes and Miss Schackleford and Mrs. Foster ran the library, these three ladies also controlled the continuous antics of study hall students in the library.

How to succeed in business

Directing flying fingers on typewriters and laying the basics for future Wall Street executives, the business staff endeavored to build firm foundations for future careers in business. Many other students also took typing courses for their own personal use. Students were also directed in all facets of using stenographs, adding machines, and other business machines used by the business staffers.

Below: Mr. Blosser and Mrs. Kiser laugh at Mr. Morris' endeavors at mimeograph machine mirth.

It's just our imagination

Emphasizing safety, Mr. Gurkin and Mr. Pidcock instructed students how to fashion practical objects out of wood, metal, and plastics, but also encouraged creative and free designs. Bunny Austin's art room overflowed with a panorama of creative art work fashioned from a vast array of materials and mediums. Coeds also learned from our Home Economics teacher, Mrs. Wilely, how to use their imagination in the art of homemaking.

Classes

Seniors' escape

Even before the school year started, seniors gathered to plan for their leisure center, the senior lounge. After careful consideration, a basic orange, pink, green, and yellow were chosen as the color scheme of the rooms. After a trip to the city dump, where the old furniture was deposited, the lounge was filled with genuine antiques donated by students. When final preparations were completed, the lounge was put to good use by the class of 73.

1. Pam Adcock: "You are you and I am I but if by chance we should find each other it will be beautiful."

2. Patricia Atkins (Pat): DE, Home Ec., "Got my job back."

3. Katherine Elaine Baber (Kathy): FSA, VOT. "How you use today will determine how tomorrow uses you."

4. George Andrew Bailey (Walrus): Varsity Baseball, Football, Chorus, Vica Club, Tech school, Electronics. "Beauty is in the eyes of the holder."

5. Patricia Gale Bailey (Pat): "What happens?"

6. Mary Ruth Baker: Pep Club, Beta Club, Spanish Club, J.V. Show, TAR, Youth for MS, Senior Play. "Happy are those who dream dreams and are willing to pay the price to make them come true."

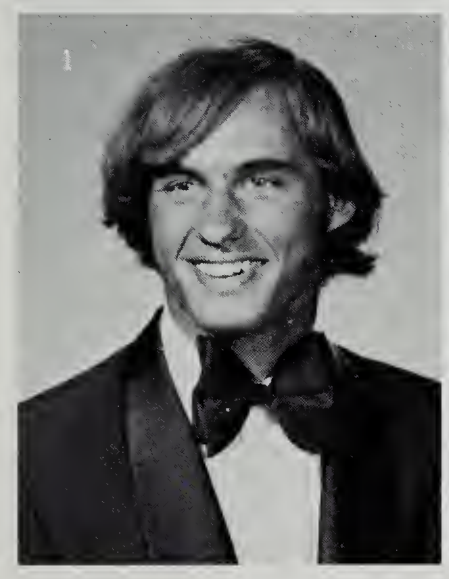
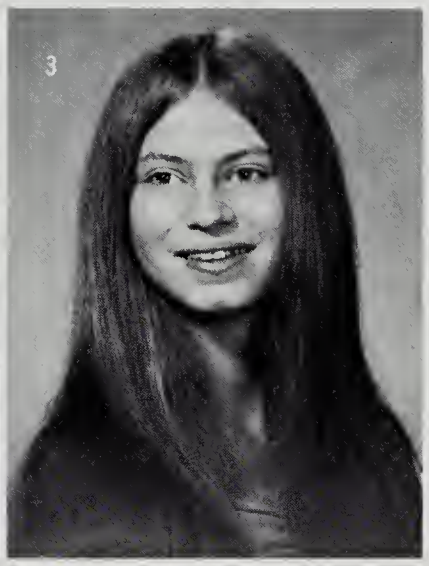
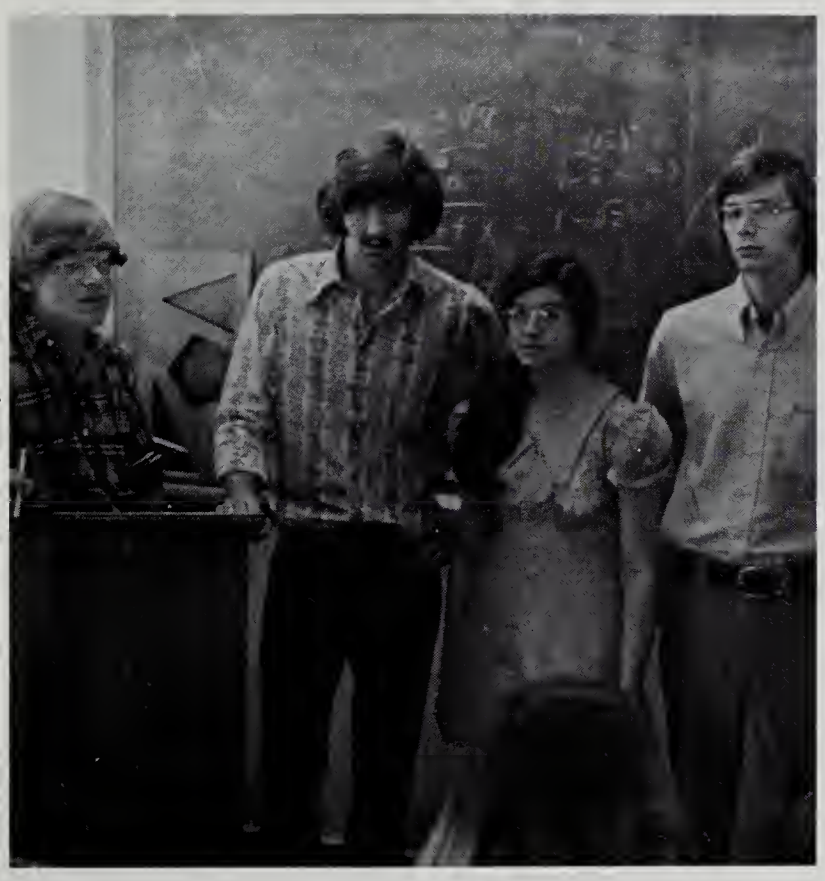
4. Suzanne Brooks: SCA, Band, Pep Club, French Club, Keyettes, J.V. Show.







Senior Government

To match the personality of the Class of 73, a Senior Committee was chosen of the same degree of integrity, originality, intelligence and all around goodness as the class which it represented. During the year they performed the traditional activities expected of them and proposed new ideas, such as running the concession stand throughout the basketball season. Led by the four illustrious class officers, the final year was an experience shared by students and teachers alike.

Gettin' it together

Despite defeat by the Lexington team, the Homecoming Dance lifted the spirits of the students. The dance was brought to a climax by the soulful music of the Dynamics. The evening was especially rewarding for Libby Perry who was chosen Homecoming Queen.

1. Sheila Brown.

2. Steven Wayne Bruce: J.V. football, Varsity football, Tennis Team, TAR, FCA, Latin Club, Key Club, J.V. Show. "Enjoy it while you can."

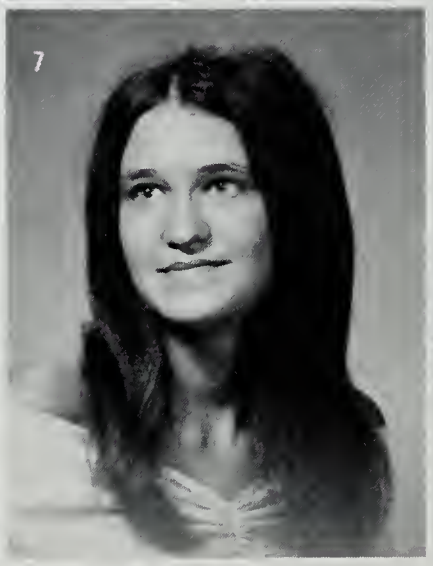
Boy's and Girl's State

Each year, eight representatives from Waynesboro High are transferred from their roles as students into more responsible positions. They are given a chance to run the state government and to help make the laws instead of just obeying them. The purpose is to give a new perspective to the students, but in the process it is a rewarding experience.



1. John Carter (Pork Chop): JV Show.

2. Lisa Carter: JV Show, Beta Club, Keyettes.

3. Dwight L. Casey (Dreek): ICT. "What it is blood."

4. Sandra Jean Coughtry (Sandy): Chorus, FHA, Miss Red Feather Contestant. "I am not afraid of tomorrow, for I have seen yesterday and I love today."

Pre-show flurries

The J.V. Show, a short two hours of entertainment, was the culminating point of months of arduous labor. Every night for two weeks, our hallowed halls were filled with such things as male can-can dancers, and Roller Derby queens. Utilizing the unusual resources of the class of 73, the long nights of practice resulted in a spectacular opening night.

Space

In addition to the characters participating in the main show, there were many extras buzzing around in the balcony, behind the stage, and in the dressing room. The temperamental feature performers, those who had to be pampered by the director, Zane Scott, and producer, Cindy Breithaupt, captured the spotlight and the hearts of the audience. And now, a special thanks goes out to those forgotten workers who helped make the show possible: the ticket committee, the publicity committee, the program committee, the stage, light and sound crews, and Mother Shipton's Girls who provided extra entertainment.

1. Margaret Louise Dinger (Meg). Band, Pep Band, Beta Club-Secretary, PYE Club — Chairman, J.V. Show, Junior Council, Senior Council, JR. SR. Prom-Publicity. "What's Up Doc?"

2. Susan Elizabeth Dolbec: J.V. Cheerleader, Pep Club, S.C.A., Band, PYE Club.

7. Shelby Jean Farris.

8. Roger Dale Fee: SCA, Football.

9. Patricia A. Fink.

10. Connie Faye Fisher: FTA, DE II, Chorus. "Today is the first day of the rest of your life."

The martians are here

Although the J.V. Show was supposed to be a representation of a typical day on Earth, it evolved into a most unusual spectacle. The actual presentation of the show turned out a trifle more risque than had been planned at the rehearsals. However, the rowdy classroom scenes and the individual blunders of the actors provided an unusual brand of entertainment. The audience was not present for the climax of the evening. Instead, it was a privilege enjoyed only by the Class of 73, who were cordially invited to the J.V. Show Party.

Upper: Milton Johnson advertises Boone's Farm, a popular beverage of the Senior Class.

Lower: Barbara Spilman and Cathy VanPatten demonstrate their family unity.

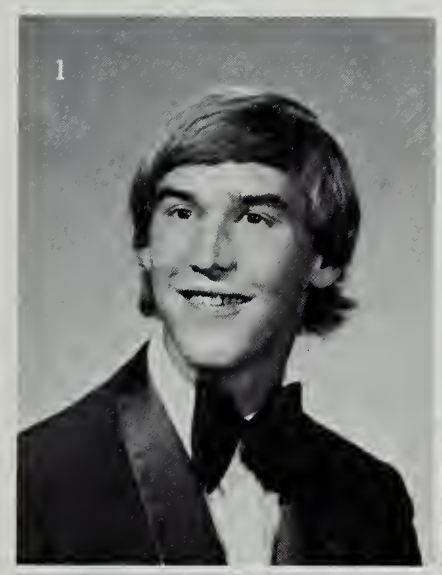
A profitable play

One of the most successful ventures of the class of '73 was the presentation of a Senior Play. All the good taste and cultural interests of the students were reflected in their choice of the melodrama, "No Opera at the Op'ry House Tonight". The charming cast of formerly unknown actors, backed up by Stage, Lighting, and Sound Crews, captured the audience with their portrayals and delighted the Senior Class with the profits.



1. John Randall Fortune (Vidine): Basketball, Football.

2. Timothy M. Foster: Tennis Team, Band, NECO, JV Show. "Well I'll be a son of a Siberian Basketball Bouncer."

3. Paula Jean Fox: Latin Club, Beta Club, Concert Choir, Regional Chorus, All-State Chorus Alternate, SCA, JV Show, Senior Play, Mixed Chorus.

4. Sandra Lea Fox: JV Cheerleader, Mixed Chorus, Concert Choir, Pep Club, Varsity Cheerleader, JV Show, Senior Play. "Times change and we with time, but not in the ways of friendship."

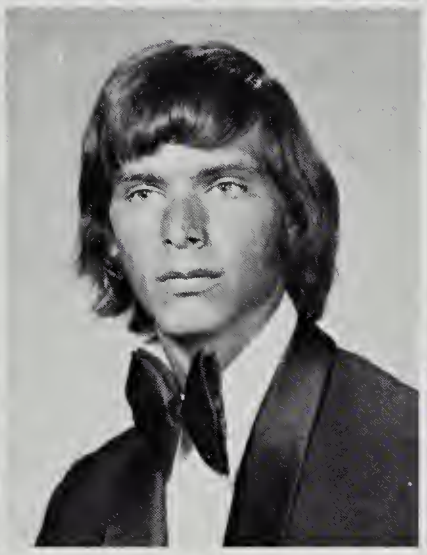
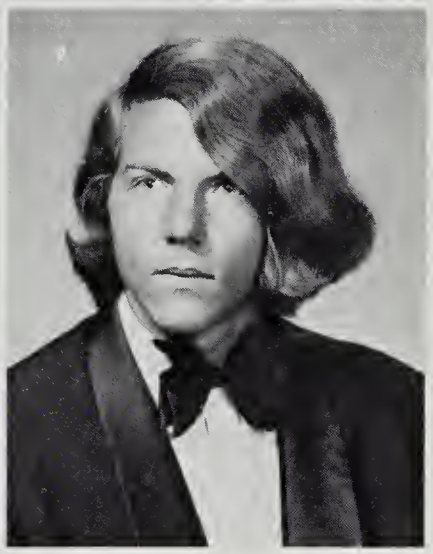
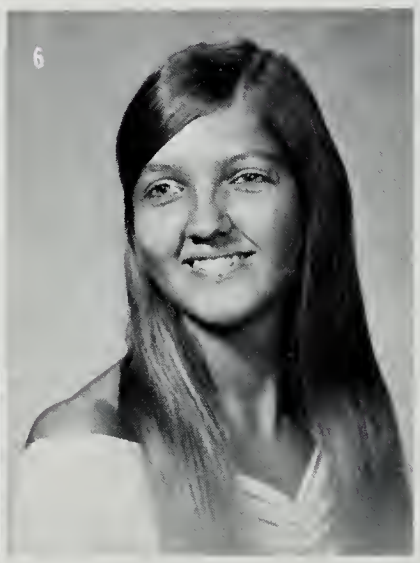
8. James L. Haney (J.L.): ICT.





Tragedies galore

Although, the Senior Play is traditional, last year the students embarked on a new venture when they performed a melodrama. One of the highlights of the evening was Cathy Van Patten's ardent search through the audience seeking out her father who had been lost in an avalanche. However, the climax of the show was the reuniting of the entire cast at the closing.



1. Danny Lee Hanger (Mad Norman): JV Football, JV Show, ICT, Auto Mechanics. "The best things in life never come easy."

3. Marian John: SODA, Pep Club, SCA, Junior Class Council, JV Show, Purple and Gold Soul, Spanish Club, Beta Club, Prom, Tennis Team, Senior Class Council, Finals, Senior Play. "I consider the day a total loss unless I receive hell from someone."

4. Bruce Anthony Johnson (Choo-Choo): Football Team. "Honey Bun, do your thing."

5. Stephen Johnson (Jersey): Basketball Team, FCA.

6. Edward Moyer Jones: ICT I, II, Junior Class Council. "Saturday in the Park."

Mania on wheels

In the wee hours of the morning, sleepy students assembled in the back parking lot of the school, each toting his own bag full of a variety of snacks and refreshments. Swarms of students darted toward the bus of their choice in a mad rush to grab the best seat. Among the activities devised to relieve the boredom of traveling were squirt gun battles, scag fights, discussions of pornographic jokes, and calisthenics practiced up and down the aisles.

1. Mildred Diane Jones (Cotton): Basketball, Purple and Gold Soul, DE. "Red Black, Green forever."

2. Stacia Marie Jordan: Keyettes, SODA, French Club, JV Show, "To be nobody but yourself, in a world that is doing its best, night and day, to make you everybody else, means to fight the hardest battle anybody can fight and never stop fighting."

Disaster strikes

By the middle of a hectic year, the lounge had been transformed from a reasonably sanitary room into a disaster area. The exhausted Seniors daily infiltrated the lounge in order to relieve their aching bones and weary minds. An added feature was the Dr. Pepper machine. Because of these attractions, the lounge proved to be the favorite vacation spot of the year.

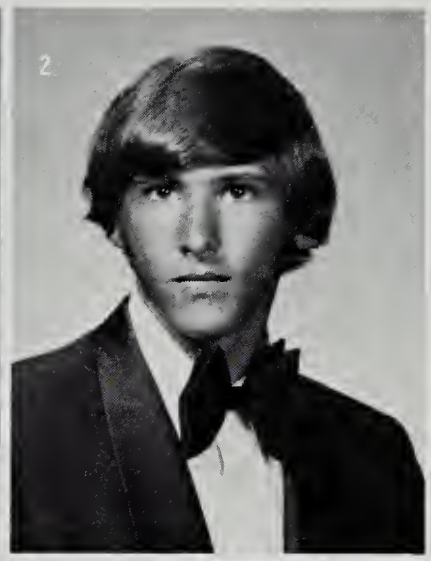
8. Ella Irene Ross: "I'm ready for anything now."

Hot fun at finals

Despite the hot weather which permeated the night of the Finals Dance, students and teachers alike crowded onto the gym floor and danced to the music of The Band from Hammonton. However, the other half of the crowd retreated to the sidewalk where the music could still be enjoyed in a cooler atmosphere.



Opposite Page: Although the teachers were supposed to be acting as chaperones, when they stepped out onto the dance floor, they blended in perfectly with the students.

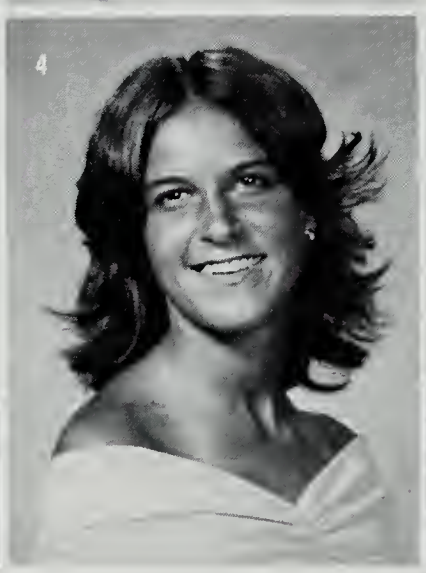
A broken tradition

Every year's Senior Class is unique; the Class of 73 was no exception. They proved this in their choice of a speaker for the Commencement exercises. J. Marshall Coleman provided an educational and entertaining lesson as he broke away from the tradition of giving the Seniors useless but eloquent advice.



1. Diana Lynn Taylor: Spanish Club, Beta Club, National Honor Society — President, Senior Play, Girl's State, Senior Committee, YFOTG, Who's Who in American Outstanding High School Students. "Once a gorilla, always a gorilla."

2. Kathleen Taylor: National Honor Society, Beta Club, SCA, French Club, PYE Club, Concert Choir, JV Show, Pep Club, Annual Staff, SODA, Girl's State, Junior Council, Red Feather, Senior Play. "Only you and I can help the sun to rise each morning. If we don't it may drench itself out in sorrow."

3. Reece A. Taylor III

4. Cynthia Anne TenHoeve (Cindy): SODA, Keyettes, Majorettes, JV Show.

5. Steven Terry.

6. Linnea Thuresson: Spanish Club, Beta Club, National Honor Society, JV Show, Mixed Chorus, Senior Committee, Outstanding Student in American High School. "Who? . . . What?"

1. David Tichenor: Debate, SCA. "No matter, it will be seasoned by wearisome wandering."

2. Richard Hayes Tomey: Spanish Club, Cross Country Teams, Track Team.

3. Arthur Monroe Turner: Football, Track, Beta Club, JV Show, Boy's State.

4. Edward George Tutle II (Tut): Spanish Club, JV Show, Stage Crew, Senior Play, Football, Cross Country, Indoor Track, Outdoor Track. "This Mountain was not make for running, Coach."

5. Deborah Lynn Twitchell (Debbie): Drama, Latin, Spanish, FHA. "If my friends are happy, I am too.

6. Barry Valentine.

1. Catherine VanPatten (Crazy Judah): Senior Play, Drama Club, Vice-President, Concert Choir, French Club, Beta Club, YFOTG-Vice President, International Thespian Society, JV Show, One Act Play Festival. "Any fool can make a rule, and every fool will mind it."

2. David Scott Velonovsky: Science Club, JV Show, Chess Club, Senior Play, YFOTG, Annual Staff.

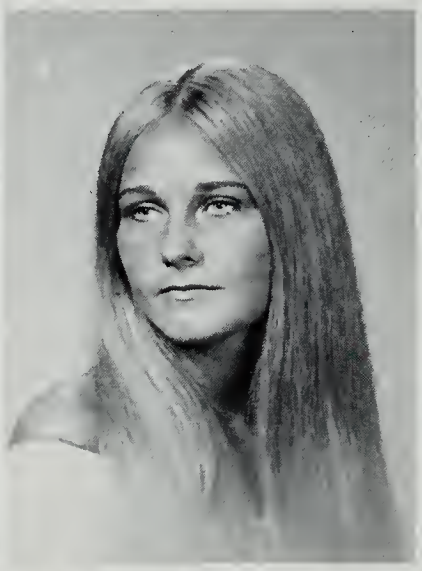
3. Theresa Lou Vess: Beta Club, FSA-Secretary, VOT. "Live for today, for tomorrow is promised to no one."

4. Pamela Diane Vest: DE I, II. "Today is the first day of the rest of your life."

5. Kay Frances Via; VOT. "Some men dream things that are and say why, I dream things that never were and say why not."

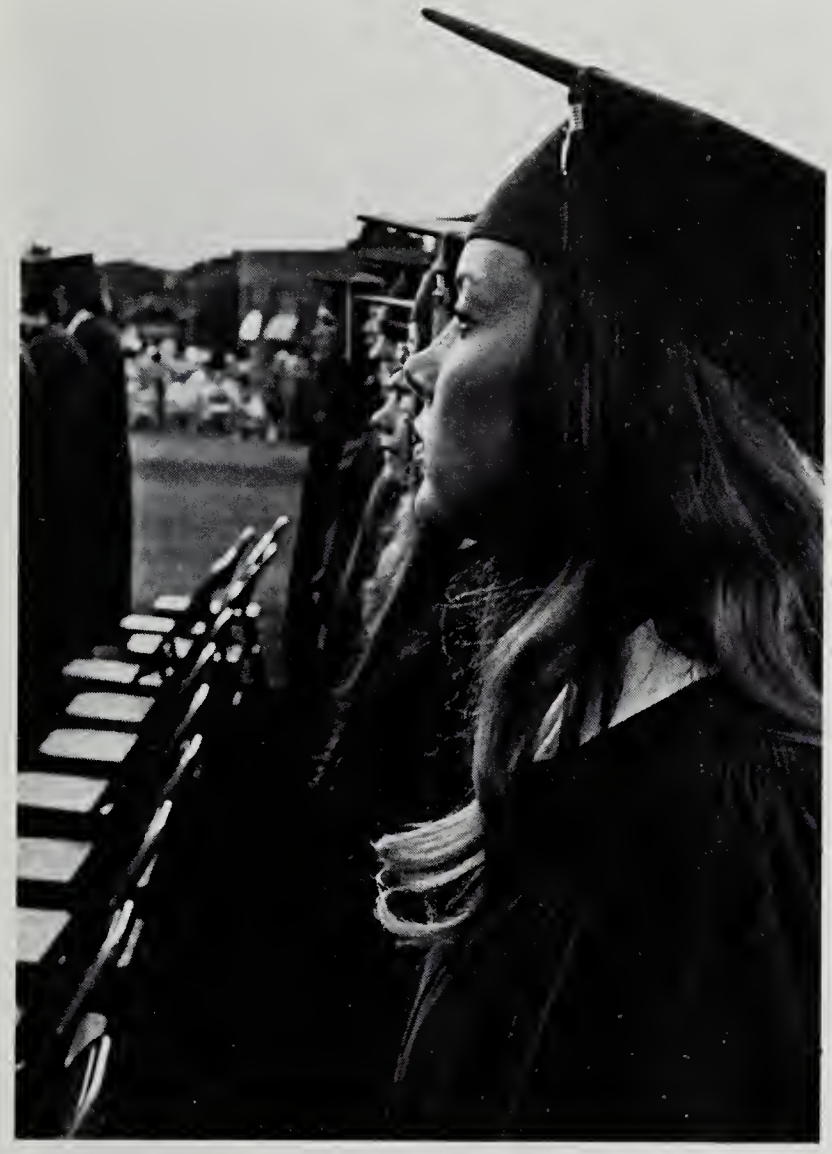
6. Phyllis G. Waggy (Phyl): DECA, Vice-President. "Live your own life, for your will die your own death."

7. Cheryl Walker.



Right: The stage slowly fills up to the music of Pomp and Circumstance as the beginning procession is made by the Seniors.

Opposite page: Suzanne Brooks devotes all of her attention to Graduation, an exermost of the Seniors did not practice this frequently while they were in school.



Scholars spawn creativity

The 1973 Valedictorian, Thomas Evans, and Salutatorian, Diana Taylor, proved not only to be most intelligent, but most creative. Both of these qualities were shown by the statements which they made in their speeches. The realistic insight they expressed gave credit to themselves and to their classmates.

1. Darryl Wayne Walter: Football, Indoor and Outdoor Track, JV Show.

2. Margrethe Warden; Pep Club, PYE, SODA, JV Show, French Club, Annual, Senior Play. "That's what they all say."

3. Debra Weatherholtz (Debby): DE I, II. "Live your life today for only a fool believes that tomorrow is promised to him."

Opposite Page: The culmination of the labors of the graduating Seniors is signified by the saturation of the stage, stands, and the field with students, teachers, and parents.

Below: The setting for commencement was made ready early Thursday morning, at which time many of the graduates weren't even prepared.

1. Cynthia Leigh Wehry (Cindy): Pep Club, Beta Club, Teenage Republicans, French Club, SODA, JV Show, Explorer Post 194, Senior Play. "I don't understand . . . where you at?"

2. Roscoe Wells: JV Basketball, Varsity Basketball. "What goiing on 'Brothers and Sisters'."

3. Steve West: ICT, VICA, Tech School. "If ya don't see what ya want; ask fer it!"

4. Ricky Thomas Wheeler.

5. Anne Carol Whitehead: Spanish Club, Pep Club, Beta Club. "Mercy Gosh . . .!"

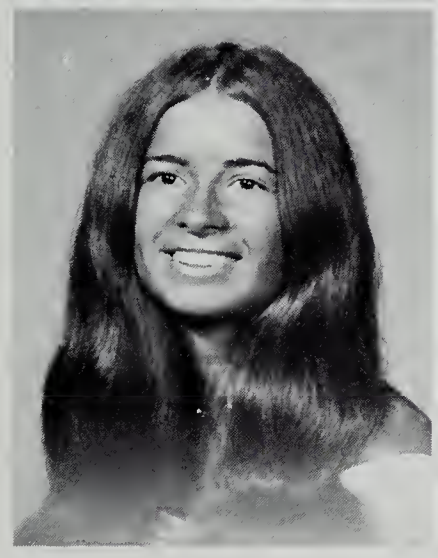
6. Bernard C. Williams (Rocky): JV Basketball, Varsity Football, FCA. "What's going on blood."

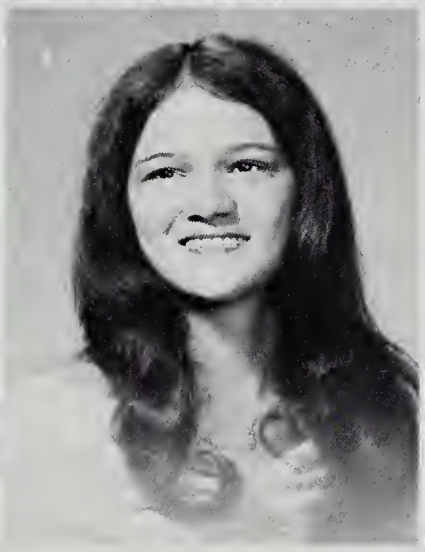
7. Dennis Robert Willis: Varsity Football, FCA, JV Show.

8. Earl Roger Woods: DE, Chorus, Pep Club. "more power to the blacks. Live the life ya love."

Senior sadness ceases

The anticipation leading up to Graduation was not superceded by the jubilation which followed. The new experiences which now confronted most of the students did not seem to worry them in the least. Almost no one expressed melancholy at the prospect of leaving high school, and these thoughts were furthest from everyone's minds at the All Night Party which followed.





1. Donna Wright.

2. Glenn Ellis Wright: French Club, JV Show, Band, Senior Class Committee. "If a man does not keep pace with his companions, perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer; let him step to the music he hears, however measured or far away."

3. Lynn Wright: SCA, Pep Club, Junior Class Committee, JV Show. "Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning."

4. Susan L. Wright (Sue): VOT. "To have a friend you must be a friend."

5. Lawrence Yates (Ta-tees): JV Football, Mixed Chorus, Concert Choir, JV Show. "Why worry about tomorrow, you might not even make it through today. Rightoff, outo' state."

6. Edward L. Qimmerman: ICT, Data Processing I. "Live like you want to live."

Juniors harness energy

The Junior Class officers had much to plan for this year. A host of new activities were encountered. Juniors had to face the task of writing, directing, producing, and acting in the traditional Junior Variety Show. After JV Show, Prom had to be dealt with. Along with the help of class sponsors Conrad Guthrie and Earl Hamilton, enterprising Juniors turned out a fantastic gala event with a maximum of effort and a minimum of expense.

All this was accomplished under the leadership of Tim Moses, President; Ted O'Hanlan, Treasurer; Isabelle Rawlings, Secretary; and the late Sue Hausrath, who was Vice-President. Before she became ill, Sue was an active leader and participant in all class activities. She was admired and respected by her teachers and peers alike.

Juniors effect change

The class of '74 executed "Change" this year for the customary Junior Variety show. Under the magnificent leadership of director Tim Miller and producer Letha Hammon, the class managed to surpass former classes in box office proceedings.

Full house audiences viewed the abundant display of junior talent. The show featured such acts as original dance routines, slapstick comedy, impersonations, song medleys, and a finale comprised of the entire cast.

After the show, the clean-up crew scoured the auditorium and senior lounge. Things were returned to normal, leaving only unforgettable memories of a great show to the many viewers and participants.

Belles on parade

Out of the thirteen contestants in this year's Miss United Way Contest, seven junior girls represented Waynesboro High School. The seven participants, Barbie Campbell, Pam Clarke, Sue Hausrath, Amy Miller, Linda Mitchell, Isabelle Rawlings, and Dale Sims, represented organizations such as Children's Home, Red Cross, Valley Workshop, YMCA, United Church Nursery, Artificial Kidneys, and Boy Scouts, respectively.

They each stressed the importance of the United Fund in our community through publicized speeches, distribution of literature, and personal appearances. A great deal of time and effort was put forth by each girl, but the one chosen to represent Waynesboro-Augusta County as Miss United Way for 1972 was the Class of 74's Pam Clarke.

This year, for the first time a Miss Community Spirit was selected. This girl was the epitome of the general good will feeling prevelent during the campaign. Chosen to receive this award was the late Susan Hausrath.

Juniors explore history

The Mariner's Museum, Langley Air Force Base, and Jamestown were destinations of the junior history trip. Jamestown proved interesting with a glass blowing exhibit and replicas of the pilgrim's ships. The buses toured massive Langley Air Force Base and then ventured to the Mariner's Museum. Here students were intrigued by the nautical displays. Although much time was spent riding in the buses, the students who went on the trip thoroughly enjoyed an educational holiday from school.

Juniors display initiative

The energetic Junior Class worked hard to build a reputation of industriousness. Even though school work had to be done, Juniors still found time for extra-curricular activities. They joined clubs, participated in sports, or helped with Junior Class projects. Juniors willingly lent their time and talent for the improvement of school projects. The overall success of such projects was due in part to vigorous junior support.

Junior intellect tested

This year members of the Junior Class encountered many frustrations in their academic endeavors. Junior Variety Show practice seemed to magnify such obstacles as term papers and algebra tests. College Board examinations had to be coped with as well as the various aptitude tests given throughout the year. But despite all the scholastic tortures inflicted on them during the year, the Class of 74 made a fine showing at the Honors Assembly as 17 juniors were elevated into the National Honor Society.

Sophs aren't soft

Basketball, soccer, football, softball and the eternal exercises comprised the process of becoming "Physically educated". The many weary bodies that could be seen limping through the halls were easily identifiable as sophomores. Lumpy heads, bruised thighs and even sprained ankles were often the result of such "non-contact" sports as volleyball and tumbling. Many hilarious incidents arose from lockerroom and gymnasium situations and eased the pains of P.E. with natures' anesthetic-laughter.

Scholars and school work

Entering a new school does not necessarily imply a change in the academic situation. Compositions are still written, homework is still passed out with seemingly utter abandon and tests are still ruthlessly administered. Piles of books, stacks of ring binders and sheaves of papers often covered desks, table tops and floors, as many sophomores strove to learn what was required of them. Once in awhile, at the sound of the 3:15 bell, an assortment of volumes and notebooks appeared to egress from the school under its own power.

Chow time

A much discussed and well liked period of the day was lunch. This interlude became a time for conversation, last minute studying, catching up lon lost sleep or even eating. Lunch, to some sophomores was a time when a dislike for the seniors evolved from upperhanded methods used by upperclassmen seeking the front of the line.

We've only just begun

A new horizon opened up when the class of 1975 entered high school. Implementing the responsibility that accompanies incoming classes, the sophomores rounded off the rough edges of young adulthood. Filling the footsteps left behind by the preceeding classes, sophomores also retained their individuality as a class. In the ensuing years the sophomores will progress upward through the ranks and continue to explore their identities in hopes of becoming a fuller person.

As the end of this volume draws near, one must envelop the sense of what has passed before and note that as yet it is not possible to say that "all the water is under the gate" . . .

A vast array of activities has now unfolded, but the potpourri is endless. Just as when one has reached the last horizon, the last skyline, and sees that yet another awaits him, so the reader must see past the finish of this volume to other times and happenings as yet unmentioned.

With this page begins the second volume of Skyline 1973. It is within these leaves that are contained the evidence of the go-getters and the doers. Their blazing paths, so diverse and yet bent in the same direction, are traced through the following sections:

Sports, pp. 8-33
Student Life, pp. 36-53

To the tune of such decrees as "Draft beer, not students", and "Every Milhouse has its Watergate," the spirit of WHS witnessed the death knell of the Vietnam conflict and the disgrace of Watergate. How would WE react to this insurmountable turnabout in our nation's leaders? We would look back on what we have learned of our government and say . . . "Why?"

Giants take 5-4 & 1

The Little Giants, with coach Novak and his fine staff at the helm, made an impressive bid for the district title this season; however, the district was blown over by Lexington's Scarlet Hurricane in a dramatic victory gale. The Little G's, though, managed to come back solidly from last year's losing plight. With the return of many experienced players, next year's season promises exciting gridiron action.

Parents boost spirit

This year was unique at W.H.S. with the establishment of a concerned Booster Club. With Mr. Gip Ridley as President, the club actively aided our teams with recognition and backing. At last fall's Football Banquet the club and the team had the pleasure of hearing from guest speaker Mr. George McKinney, assistant football coach at Virginia Tech. We congratulate the Booster Club and its fine efforts and look forward to the same interest next year.

Cagers are district champs

The 1973 Giants once again attested to Waynesboro's Basketball excellence with an impressive 15-5 season. The Little Giants were once again District Champions as they defeated Wilson Memorial, Harrisonburg and tough slugging Lexington in the tournament playoffs to capture the trophy. Defeated only by T.A., Broadway and the non-district Lee High School, Waynesboro held crowds with stick-to-it defense and hard-driving offense, the two W.H.S. trademarks of the past several seasons. Hopefully, with the return of many experienced lettermen, another trophy will shine in the W.H.S. halls in '74.

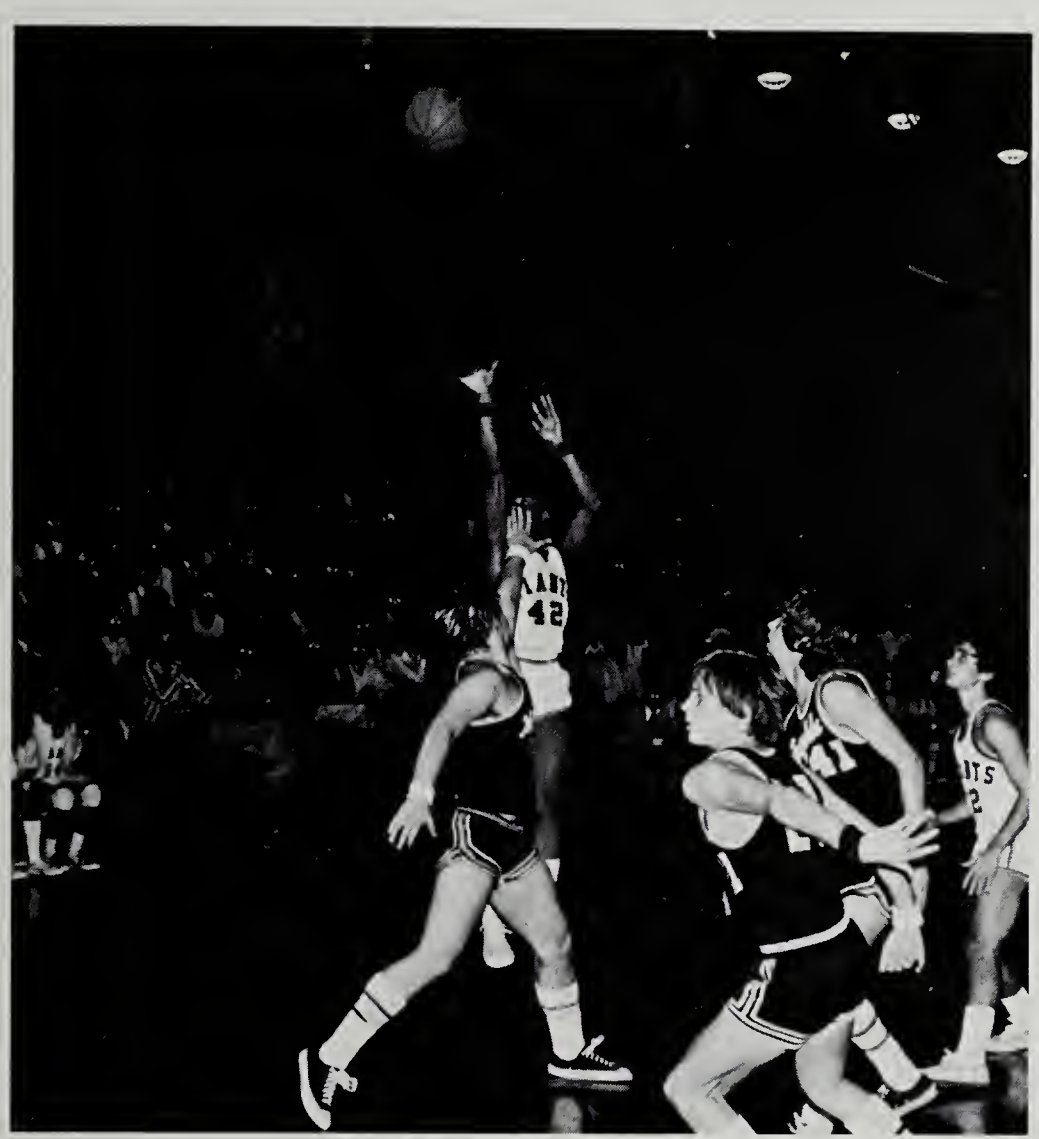
J.V.'s play rough

Waynesboro was blessed with an outstanding J.V. Basketball team to match the varsity contingent in 1973. The Junior Varsity finished second in the district beaten only by T.A., Fort Defiance and Stuarts Draft during the regular season. The J.V.'s ended with a 15-5 record to match that of the varsity squad. W.H.S. beat out Harrisonburg to take the second place spot as the Streaks finished a close third. Coach Dick Moyer once again worked a well balanced attack into a fine team for the High School to be proud of.



Opposite top: Ricky Roberts, 32, lays up a smooth shot as Ernie Howard, partially hidden, comes in for the possible rebound.
Opposite bottom: Donnie Dillard, 40, appears to be intent upon getting his next shot in or else, or else what, Don?

Girl Cagers smile

The Girl's Basketball team had fun in competition this year. Although they posted no regular season wins, the team was able to participate in the tournaments at Harrisonburg. Of those who received letters, there were four junior standouts and one freshman who will return for the 1973-74 season.

Trackers set pace

The Outdoor Track team this year proved to be another of Waynesboro's outstanding contingents. The Giants finished second in the district to Turner Ashby and once again set numerous records in both track and field events. The mile, mile relay, pole vault, two mile, triple jump and long jump marks were smashed and a primary time was established in the new 330 yd. intermediate hurdles.

Bottom right: Keith Allamong shoots skyward and takes the Pole Vault record away from the books and onto his achievements.

Indoor catches fire

"Wow!" is all that can be said for the 1973 Indoor Track team. The word is very appropriate for the team's District Title catch after a rookie season of last year. The team romped over Turner Ashby for the District championship and finished fourth in the state meet, losing to first place Nelson County. The track program at W.H.S. has developed greatly since the addition of Mr. Jack Toms as head coach. Mainly, the Cross Country and Indoor Track teams have profited under Coach Toms' leadership. We congratulate the track teams and Coach Toms and wish them luck in the coming years.

The Cross Country team gained members this year and made movements toward the top of the district. Paced by second-year men Mike Caulkins and Gary Dalton, W.H.S. was impressive for a young team, finishing third in the district. The team posted a ten win and three loss season. Runners were faced with bad weather to cow pastures; yet, the team came up winning. Next year's Cross Country team will hold much potential in returning members.

Tennis is winning racket

The Tennis team finished a strong second in the district for 1973, only the second year of its organization. The team vollied past Turner Ashby in the District tournament with a score of 5-4; however, strong Harrisonburg came racketing back to take the title from the Little Giants by a score of 8-1. The Little G's finished the regular season play with an impressive 8-4 record. For a second year team, the Tennis contingent did well; accordingly, we look for the team to come on strong in the 1974 season.

The 1973 Baseball team tied for second place in the district and finished the regular season with a 9-4 record. The Giants went down, however, in their first game of the single-elimination playoffs, losing to Harrisonburg by a score of 5-1. Harrisonburg went on to win the district. Waynesboro was tied for second place, incidentally, to Harrisonburg in the regular season standings. The Giants were quick moving and good at the plate as they had many senior members this season. There will, however, be several returning juniors and sophomores to balance the team in '74.

Twice is nice

The 1973 Golf Team became the second W.H.S. State Champions in a row as they defended their title of last year. Driving past Loudon Valley and Lexington in the Regionals, the Giants went on to top Altavista and Galax in the State Finals at New Market. We can be proud of the team's achievements and look for Coach Hamp to strike again in '74.

Girls lead support

The 1973 Junior Varsity and Varsity cheerleaders were W.H.S. athletics' pride and joy on every team. With graceful movements and exciting cries, our girls always looked good, even when the players didn't. The cheerleaders also faced freezing mornings in mini-outfits to warm up our numerous pep rallies.

WHS Dogpatch

To kick off the '72-'73 school year the Beta Club gave the girls a headstart with its annual Sadie Hawkins Dance. A simulated Dogpatch disguised and brightened the usually sombre girls' gym. With the addition of two music-makers — both the Dynamics and disc jockey Larry Foster — the mood was complete. October 14 finally arrived and eight o'clock brought dozens of "Daisy Mae's" and "Li'l Abners". A table of vittles and sweet apple cider kept the dancers' spirits high while a generous profit brought joy to the hearts of Beta Club members.

Gettin' it together

Homecoming night, November 3, was an elaborate combination of football game, homecoming court, and dance. The court consisted of these select young ladies and their escorts: sophomores Nancy Sheffield and Jeff Martin, Shelby Jones and Greg Ostrander; juniors Karen Hartnet and Craig Hiserman, Susie Wirt and Gary Huffman; and seniors Wanda Eaves and Earl Woods, Libby Perry and Bill Bolton, Barbie Murray and Robbie Robertson. The evening was especially gratifying for Libby Perry who was crowned Homecoming Queen 1973. Though moods were temporarily dampened by Lexington's victory over Waynesboro, spirits soon picked up as the Dynamics let loose at "Gettin' It Together", a dance planned by the Pep Club.

Change

Change

Even before Christmas, plans were underway for the Class of '74's JV Show — "Change". In the capable hands of director Tim Miller and producer Letha Hammon, one of WHS's finest JV Shows evolved. Brian Scruby as Walter Klondite narrated the first half of the show as various reporters led the captivated audience on a tour through Switzerland, Germany, an American college campus, and last but certainly not least, the NASA Space Program. This subtle reference to "Space" was received with much chagrin by the Class of '73. The second half featured Mack Mac Truck starring Clif Denney, the ingestion of a goldfish by Jack Stirewalt, wild girations to "Super Fly", and "The Modfather" with Joe Burns as The Boss. The grand finale came when Bobbie Neff sang a medley of songs as the rest of the class displayed their dramatic abilities and talents. With a big hunk of change in the Class of '74's pocket and a satisfied smile on each face, the post-show celebration began, enhanced by "Change's" unquestionable success.

The band plays on

Once again the WHS band led the Giant fans in their cheers and support of the WHS football team. The rousing half-time shows provided entertainment for the crowd as well as a boost for the team. This enthusiasm engendered by the band continued throughout the year as they went on to produce their traditional Christmas and Spring concerts.

Chorus and Choir in concert

The annual Christmas concert given by both the WHS Concert Choir and Mixed Chorus was the first of their two annual performances. "Something Special" took shape as the traditional Spring concert. As the audience reveled in the glories of great music, many anxious choral students awaited the naming of the successors to this year's Concert Choir. The Concert Choir also introduced the first annual "pops" concert in the form of "April Foolery".

CHANGING TIDES

Creating changing tides

After long hours of work and deliberation on the part of the Junior class, May 11th finally came bringing this year's Jr.-Sr. Prom, "Changing Tides". WHS's drab gym was beautifully transformed into a sandy beach and roaring ocean complete with a lighthouse, a sturdy pier entrance and a generous refreshment table. "The Sweet Dreams" added to the already successful dance with their interpretations of various popular songs. Inevitably it all came to an end and the capable clean-up crew went to work returning the once enchanting gym to bare walls and vacant floors, leaving only memories of the "Changing Tides".

Finals ferments finality

Amid the original decor designed and erected by loyal Seniors, the Class of '73 bid the social life of WHS a fond adieu. The dance was steeped in the traditions of the Ring Figure and accompanying symbols of the social twilight of high school. Satisfied Seniors fondly danced away the remainder of their scholastic careers.

Graduation with gusto

June 7 waned warm and breezy as the strains of "Pomp and Circumstance" heralded the procession of the Class of '73 into their long-awaited commencement exercises. As the WHS Band played, some 270 Seniors marched solemnly to the site of their last hour as high school students. The Rev. Wentz Miller gave the invocation and the guests and Seniors heard a brief talk by Diana Taylor, Salutatorian. Baird Blanchard, Senior Class Vice President, introduced Delegate J. Marshall Coleman who delivered the main address. Mr. Coleman concerned himself with the need for continuing education, admonishing the Seniors to seek knowledge without regard to whether or not they chose to continue their education on a formal level. Thomas Evans, Valedictorian, spoke to the class on his philosophy of life, happiness, and diplomas were awarded by Mrs. J. Kirk Snell, School Board Chairman. The Rev. Mr. Miller delivered the benediction and the Seniors marched from the athletic field into the future and on to a wild all-night celebration.

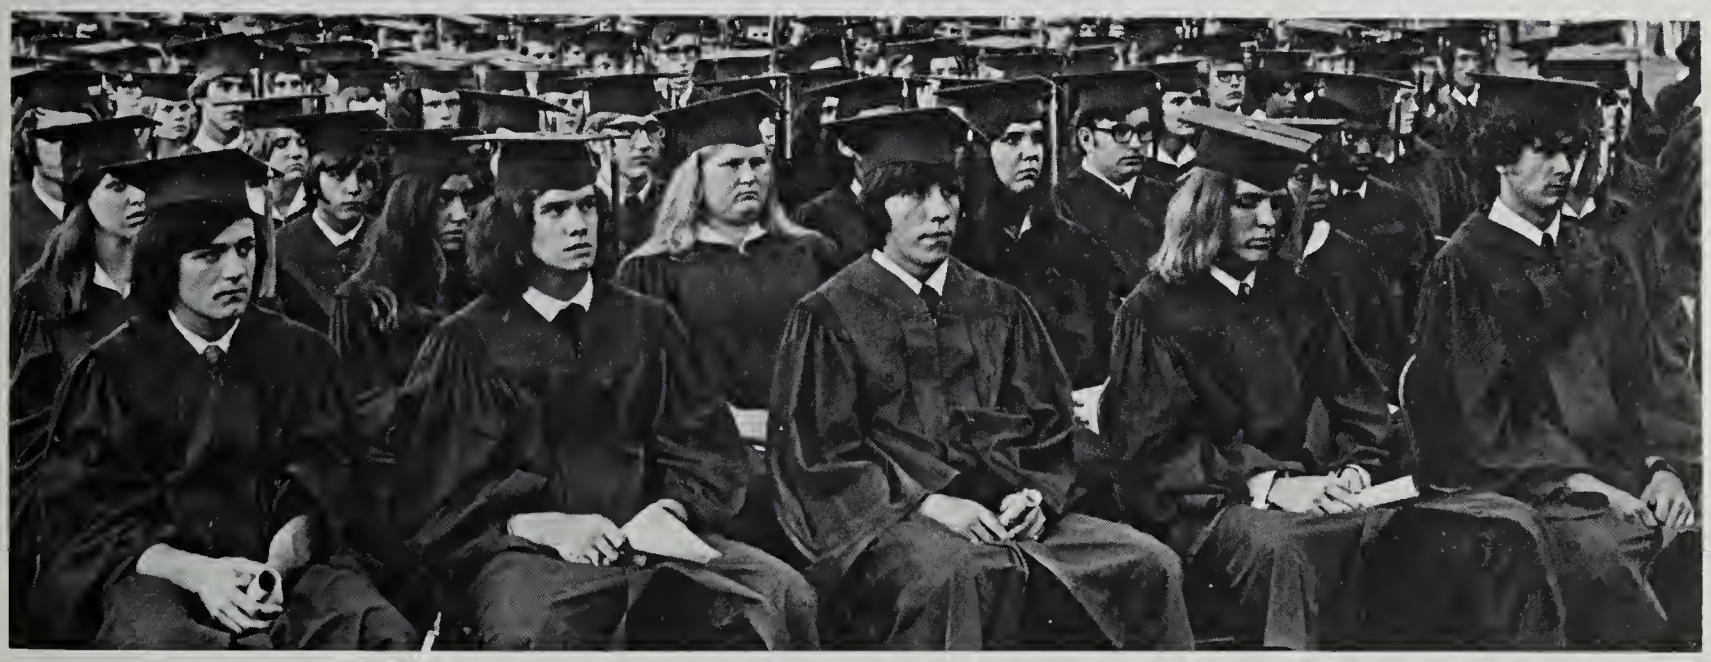
1973



Life is a vast plain with many irregularities between the individual and the nearest horizon. All obstacles having been overcome, one finds that the achievement of the goal serves only to heighten the aims, to broaden the perspective, and to consume the individual in a fire of striving, of reaching, of attaining. So must all people streak to the skyline and see what lies beyond.
